The Newhall Farmer's Market attendees engaged in discussion at our WaterTalks booth ranged in age from approximately 9 years old to 80 years old. After a brief 1-2 minute introduction of the WaterTalks project goals and an overview of the water infrastructure of the Santa Clarita Valley, our team discussed specific concerns each resident had about the water provided at their residence as well as stormwater issues they may regularly experience. The WaterTalks website (watertalks.csusb.edu) and the Toolkit developed for our region were utilized during these discussions as graphic talking points and to explain elements of the water system and watershed. Responses from the residents were recorded in bullet format for dissemination to the City of Santa Clarita Environmental Services staff, the local water utility provider (SCV Water) and the CSUSB WaterTalks team.
