In the month of October, we hosted a tree distribution in partnership with LADWP, where we were able to distribute 46 trees to the community! The event also consisted of a resource fair featuring resources from other partner organizations.

Introducing Water Talks 101!

Water Talks is California's first-ever water equity program designed to engage and involve 104 communities in the planning process of water-related projects throughout L. A. and Ventura County. As one of 13 local community-based organizations who are a part of WaterTalks, KYCC is set with the task of delivering one of the largest state-funded water equity projects in California. Join us throughout this journey on community planning for water as we continue to share information and resources around this important topic!
